McGILL COLLEGE, Montreal, Quebec, March 8, 1888.—This is to certify that I have examined the formula and prescribed Dr. Lohrey's Periodical Pills, of Paris, France. I have concluded that if this combination will not excite the menses, that there is nothing in medicine that will do it, it is a 100% grain medicine, containing all the well known harmless drugs that act upon the generative system. I know them to be positive, harmless and safe for all kinds of suppurative or any cause. I have used them in my practice for the last four years, and found that the most stubborn cases yield. Yours, R. L. KYDD, M. D. 22 or 3 for St. A. American Pill Co., Royal City, Brainerd, Minn. The genuine French Pill only obtained of S. W. GRAY & CO., Brainerd, Minn.

HENRY SPALDING has been appointed as organizer for the campaign of 1892 in this county.

A joint resolution has passed the house asking that United States senators be elected by popular vote. This is right, and we hope this agitation will be continued until the federal constitution is changed to conform with this idea.

The Motley Register has received a spicy communication from Gull River in regard to the commissioner question. It will be published this week and Mr. Hallett will receive some hard knocks.

The city council has wisely offered a reward of two hundred dollars for the arrest and conviction of the miserable wretch who has been setting fires of late in this city. If they had only added the use of a rope and telegraph pole it would meet with more hearty approval.

A bill to regulate railroads has been introduced into the house which, should it become a law, practically confiscate all railroad property in the state. It is fashioned after the Iowa law, only it is much more severe. It practically takes the management of the railroad out of the hands of the owners and places it in the hands of the railroad commissioners. In case charges are made against the company it places the burden of proof upon the company to show that it is innocent, which is contrary to all precedent. The effect of the passage of this bill would be, not only to stop all railroad building as it has in Iowa, but to reduce the service as to throw hundreds of railroad employees out of work. Do Brainerd railroad employees desire this state of affairs? Surely not. Let every effort be made to see that the railroads be accorded fair treatment, and it will be better even for the radical anti-railroad men who are seeking to gain everything to the ruin of one of the greatest business interests of the country.

The Price-Dunn Contest.
It has been expected that the Price-Dunn contest would be settled in the house yesterday by the seating of Mr. Dunn, who, by the evidence submitted, is clearly entitled to the seat, but the matter is further from a settlement than ever. Mr. Dunn does not claim the seat because of the wrong initials on the Price ballots, but because of an attempt to count him out in Morrison county, which was discovered on the recount accorded Mr. Dunn by the court. By the recount Mr. Dunn has a clear majority. This the Price men have to admit, but they try to bolster up their cause by claiming that the ballots were tampered with before the recount, by placing Dunn's stickers over Price names, and base their claims on the statements of Geo. LaFond, of Little Falls, who, it is claimed, says that he and another man entered the room where the ballots are kept and counted the vote for sheriff, but did not count or pay any attention to the legislative ticket. This is the way the matter stood yesterday when Mr. Stevens, of the election committee, introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee on elections shall have full power and authority to send for persons and papers to administer oaths if necessary. The object of his resolution is to enable the committee to send to Little Falls for certain persons whom the committee fancied could, if they would, throw some light upon the contest. The statement was made in the committee's behalf that the passage of the bill would incur no expense on the state; that it would save expenditures for trustees or other officials qualified to administer oaths, and the matter will not be finally settled until the evidence of these persons can be secured.

Meeting to Take Action.
We have received the following resolutions with request to publish them. The meeting will be held in Brainerd on Jan. 28th to take action in regard to the matter and all counties having an interest in the matter are requested to send one or more delegates to the convention:

Whereas, In the county of Aitkin, in this state, there is now on the tax list of this county 174,000 acres of lands subject to taxation, and
Whereas, There is now within the limits of this county more than 750,000 acres of railroad lands, belonging principally to the Northern Pacific and St. Paul & Duluth railroads, which are not taxed, and
Whereas, Said railroads owning lands pay only 3 per cent on gross earnings, being the same tax as paid by other railroads in this state which have no land grants, so this non-taxation of these lands amounts practically to an exemption of said lands, and
Whereas, The same condition of affairs exist in many other counties in the northern part of this state only in a lesser degree as to the proportion of land now therefore, be it
Resolved, That it is the sense of this board that some relief in this state of affairs is imperatively needed in this and other counties having railroad lands within its borders, and we hereby earnestly urge that our legislature now assembled exhaust all legal means to that end And we hereby request other counties interested in this matter to join us in this effort.

An Artists Ready Reply.
Even a severe criticism may be disarmed of its severity by a happy answer that changes its meaning, and it is often no less fortunate to be able to turn a good-natured one. Sir John Watson Gordon, who ultimately became president of the Royal Scottish Academy, used to tell this story of Lord Palmerston:

"I had exhibited for several years, but without any particular success. One year, however, Lord Palmerston took a sudden fancy to my picture called 'Summer in the Lowlands,' and bought it at a high price. His lordship at the same time made inquiries after the artist and invited me to call upon him. I waited upon him accordingly. He complimented me upon the picture, but said there was one thing about it he could not understand."

"What is that, my lord?" I asked.
"That there should be such long grass in a field where there are so many sheep," said his lordship promptly, and with a merry twinkle in the eye. "I was a decided hit, and having bought the picture and paid for it he was entitled to his joke."

"How do you account for it?" he went on smiling and looking first at the picture and then at me.
"Those sheep, my lord," I replied, "were only turned into that field the night before I finished the picture."

"His lordship laughed heartily and said 'Bravo!' at my reply and gave me a commission for two more pictures, and I have cashed since then some very notable checks of his, dear old boy!"—London Telegraph.

Locked Antlers.
"Locked horns are becoming quite a fad with some of the swells at the metropolis," said a gentleman the other day, "and some of the Adirondack hunters and guides are making little sums by occasional sales of the curious to the city. You see, the old story about the bucks that fall to fighting, and in some manner get their horns locked so they can't get apart and then starve to death, has taken a strong hold upon the romantic natures of many people and if they can only get a set of locked horns mounted they are happy."

"So the hunters select nice horns that correspond to size, shape and the use of a twisted cord and case spring them together as if locked in their death embrace by the maddened thrusts of fighting bucks. Then, on account of the great rarity and the difficulty of finding them, they are sold to the rich curiosity hunter for a big price. His friends look in wonder and envy at them, while the hunter, who has sold them, tells the story of how he found them skeletoned together by the horns and the earth all trodden down around the place so solidly that vegetation had not grown there in years, etc., and the guide goes back to the woods and fixes up another pair for the next curiosity seeker."—Utica Observer.

A Story of Dom Pedro.
Dr. Stelling, the famous oculist, while lecturing to his students at Vienna recently told a pretty story of Dom Pedro of Brazil. He said that he had had many opportunities of conversing with the ex-emperor, a man of the highest character and of great culture, whose heart and mind were always filled with plans for improving the condition of his people. It was one of his dearest wishes to have a hospital in Rio, but he lacked the money to build it. He was told by a friend that he should build it on a hill, and he did so. He was told by a friend that he should build it on a hill, and he did so. He was told by a friend that he should build it on a hill, and he did so.

Silk and Silkworms.
Comparatively few silk cocoons are raised in this country—not more than 10,000 pounds in all, probably—of which amount the United States government purchases about one-half for educational purposes. In France every farmer's wife raises a few pounds of cocoons every spring and makes money by selling them, and in this way, mainly, is the silk crop of that country grown. There are few occupations more easy or agreeable for a woman than the raising of cocoons, and it offers a new source of income to wives and daughters in all sections of the country. The way to get started in this business is to get a few silkworm eggs, which will receive, during the month following, a quarter of an ounce of them, which will contain about 9,000, in little boxes. The department will also furnish information as to the best and most approved method for preparing and raising the cocoons. With two ounces of eggs a woman ought to be able to raise 50 or 60 pounds per annum between the middle of March and the first of June. Cocoons are worth over $1 a pound now. When the great silkworm season arrives, the silkworm will be worth long, some of those interested in the matter at the department of agriculture seem to think that more than 100,000 women will be thereby profitable employed. During the next ten days speaking is permissible in the whispering voice, and in the course of the next fifteen days the ordinary conversational tone may be gradually employed.—New York Telegram.

The Length of the Day.
At London, England, and Bremen, Prussia, the longest day has sixteen and a half hours. At Stockholm, Sweden, it is eighteen and a half hours in length. At Hanover, in Germany, and Danzig, in Prussia, the longest day has seventeen hours. At St. Petersburg, Russia, and Tobolsk, Siberia, the longest is nineteen hours, and the shortest five hours. At Tormes, Finland, June 21 brings a day nearly twenty-two hours in length. At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22, without interruption, that is to say the sun is never set in that time, and in Spitzbergen the longest day is three and a half months.

At Philadelphia the longest day is somewhat less than fifteen hours, and in Montreal, Canada, it is sixteen.

Not Wearing the Watch.
Chicago Tribune: "We are continually reading of the cheek of a drummer," said one of them in the Palmerston Sunday evening. "Why, they are not decent high compared to some of the country merchants we meet. They want us to give them every point asked for, and they don't believe half you say. Now, I've sold clothing for twelve years, and my customers know that I do the best I can by them. The cheekiest man I ever met keeps a big general store in Iowa, near Sioux City. I have never sold to him, and when I started out last trip the firm promised me a gold watch if I could sell this chap. I made up my mind to sell him a watch, even if I put myself at a personal loss of a hundred or so. His name is Wolf. It is about two weeks ago that I went into his store and introduced myself. I talked over an hour and finally he decided to look over my line. Then he picked out a few goods and asked for my best terms. Of course I gave him thirty days' time.

"That's too short," he said. "I don't want your goods."

"Thirty days is all anyone would allow you," I pleaded.

"Then keep your clothing, said he, and pay for it. I went about town and returned in the evening. I was so exasperated I would have given him the goods.

"Well," I said to him, "I've decided to let you have them."

"Don't want them."

"I will give you your own terms."

"How's that?"

"You can take the goods, Mr. Wolf, and pay for them when you get good and ready. Just suit yourself about the year."

"Is that the best you can do?" he asked.

"You notice I'm not wearing a gold watch."

Religion in Russia.
Most educated Russians have no religion at all. The clergy are divided into two classes, the black and the white. The white clergy, or parishes, are in a very low state of culture and material well-being, which condition has been brought about by long years of existence under a baneful system. The days of serfdom the priesthood formed a caste of their own, the nobility refusing to renounce their worldly position to assume the sacerdotal office, and the peasants, being serfs, could not recruit the ranks of the priesthood. They were degraded by the peasants and despised by the nobility. This contempt is illustrated by M. Leroy-Deaulieu. He is quoted as saying: "I went to the church to see the minister. On one occasion a village priest, receiving a grand duke at the door of the church, and being used to such exalted personages, hesitated to offer his hand. The grand duke, becoming impatient, exclaimed: 'Stretch out your paw, you fool! The main revenue of the parish is in the hands of the church fees, and the weak, poverty-stricken priest is tempted to fawn on his congregation with the hope of helping his income. The black clergy include highly educated gentlemen, politicians and men of the world, and they enjoyed the respect of society. The beauty of the Greek church service is devoted upon, especially the marvelous chanting of the choir. The human voice is unaided by any instrumental music, as to the Russian mind it would be impious to worship God by machinery."

THE effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Croup, Coughs, Whooping Cough, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the onset of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, whooping cough, and all the ailments of children have been subject to."—Capt. U. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I am justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of its popularity, it being more saleable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvelous."—E. S. Drake, M. D., Beloit, Kans.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skillful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses, she began to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continue to use the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The masquerade ball at the rink Tuesday evening by the Germania Maennerchor, was a grand success in every particular. The attendance this year eclipsed all former occasions, and the costumes were varied and elegant. These annual balls by this society are each year better attended and becoming more popular, and deservedly so, as no pains are spared to make them a social success.

The ball masque by the Chiquitana Club on the evening of Feb. 9th, is already the absorbing topic of conversation among the society people of the city, and many a feminine head is busy these days, devising ways and means to secure a costume that will out-shine all others. Judging by the interest taken in this coming affair by the feminine portion of the community, it will be the great social event of the season.

Chief Barns, of Staples, was in the city yesterday trying to secure evidence against Geo. Jones, a former Brainerd sport, who is held at that place for setting fire to a dance house which was burned there a few days ago. A jug which had contained turpentine was found near the fire, and has since been recognized by a conductor as the same one he saw in Jones' possession a short time preceding the fire. Jones, it is claimed, is a well known crook, who has hung about here for years. He was up before the grand jury last spring for knocking a man down, but for some reason was not indicted.

Matters have been so far arranged, we understand, that a definite proposition agreeable alike to the company and city, can be made, and we have no doubt that, considering that members of the syndicate have declared themselves perfectly satisfied as to the site and facilities for conducting their business, that the proposition will meet with the approval of both parties and the syndicate located here. The details of the proposition are now being arranged and can shortly be made public.

Mr. John Gibson, who left here last spring for the new state of Washington with a view of seeking a permanent location, has returned. Mr. Gibson is a practical, common-sense farmer, and gives no flattering account of the climate, or the financial position of several men from this locality who rashly sold out and moved their families to that much-lauded country who now sigh not altogether in secret for Crow Wing county once more.

Their First Appearance.

The Standard Opera Co., all things considered, gave a very creditable presentation of the charming comic opera, "The Bells of Corneville" at the opera house last night. This company has just been organized in this city under the management of G. W. Alexander, and last night's performance was their first appearance in public. It is no small matter to organize a troupe of this character, and when we consider that only ten days ago all members of the troupe were entire strangers to each other and most of them had never appeared in this particular opera before, all must pronounce last night's presentation a wonderful success, and a flattering testimonial to Manager Alexander's ability as a theatrical manager and director. Of the individual members of the company we have not the time to offer lengthy criticisms. Miss Pomeroy, as Serpette, was charming. She has a sweet, well cultivated soprano voice, and although laboring under the disadvantage of a heavy cold, she sang sweetly, and was graceful and pleasing in her acting. W. B. Wheeler, the comedian, as LeBail, was exceedingly funny, while C. B. Wiggins, as the marquis, was pleasing withal. J. S. Hunt, in the difficult role of Gaspard, the miser, was excellent. The chorus was good, in fact better than could be expected considering the limited time for rehearsals. The Spanish dance by the McCoy Sisters was also a pleasing feature. The one drawback to what would otherwise have been an excellent performance, was Mlle Madeleine, as Germaine. She could neither sing nor act, and we have no doubt that any, even the poorest of chorus girls, could have filled the role better than she. However, all things considered, the performance was very creditable, and we have no doubt but that after a few performances this company will be the equal, if not the superior, to most opera companies that visit small cities like Brainerd. To-night the company will present The Bohemian Girl.

At Eagle Bend last Friday while Jerome Smith was driving along the road with a load of wood a short distance from town, a wolf ran out in front of him. Jerome jumped from his load and proceeded to capture it, and with the assistance of a dog and two or three clubs succeeded in killing it.

Sanitary Cranks and Humbugs.

We had just been reading the views of an eminent sanitary expert upon impregnation of brown stone houses with the germs of diphtheria. We have also read no less than three published opinions of sanitary experts that "a wooden house is positively unfit to live in." One eminent sanitary expert gives it as his opinion that at the expiration of five years every bit of woodwork of a house is alive with all sorts of scientific things. In the latest number of an architectural paper the great Wingate tells us that even "the vicinity of large quantities of wood is dangerous to health," and talks about zymotic germs and the mycelin of the fungus in a way that is suggestive of bacteria and microbes. Nevertheless, we do not believe these things.

An eminent German sanitary expert says that chemists have succeeded in making a first rate remedy out of sawdust. A man can, therefore, get grip and go out and get as drunk as a lord on a fence rail. A man can make brandy mashes out of the shingles of his roof; he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs of his kitchen chairs. You may shut your eyes to all this, but you can't keep him away from a tavern, but if he can become uproarious on boiled sawdust and dehydrated window sills any amount of reform must necessarily be a failure, and we think that the opinion of a sanitary crank upon the jim jams of a house should be taken with a most liberal grain of allowance.—Sanitary Plumber.

Falling Eyesight from the Grip.

The ravages from the grip are felt by its victims and a new form of disease resulting from it has appeared. Oculists are busy with patients who complain of a burning sensation in the eyes, which has become inflamed, and in some cases the range of vision is affected. It is observed that the majority of persons so affected were victims of the grip. One of the leading oculists, in speaking of the disease, said that the eyes seem to be the last part of the body affected. The number of cases of eye trouble has increased to an alarming extent, and in most cases it was a secondary complaint. The disease seems to be a sympathetic one, as the eyes are affected as are other parts of the body, more particularly the muscular system, to which it causes great pain in performing its functions. A noticeable fact is that in the majority of cases there had been former trouble with the eyesight, and evidently the grip had the effect of renewing this latent disease. Philadelphia Record.

A tramp exposed to the cold winds of the night, according to the Minneapolis Journal, Miss Bessie Underwood, one of the students, was present among others. Miss Bessie did not appear to be in the least affected by the cold, but she began to throw delicate articles of college dress on the floor of the window. She wasn't that kind of a girl. She made connection with a convalescent eye specialist. The doctor, who was in the proper manner, turned on the hose and before any one recovered presence of mind sufficiently to turn in a fire alarm she had the blaze extinguished.

Old Age Then and Now.

I am afraid that old people found life rather a dull business in the time of King David and his rich old subjects and friends, Barzilai, who, poor man, could not have told a teal from a canvas sack, nor enjoyed a symphony concert if they had had those luxuries in his day. There were no pleasant firesides, for there were no chimneys. There were no daily newspapers for the old man to read, and he could not read them if there were, with his dim eyes, nor hear them read, very probably, with his dulled ears. There was no tobacco, a soothing drug, which in its various forms is a great solace to the many old men and some old women. Carlyle and his mother used to smoke their pipes together, you remember. Old age is infinitely more cheerful, for intelligent people at least, than it was two or three thousand years ago. It is our duty, so far as we can, to keep it so. There will always be enough about it that is solemn, and more than enough, alas! that is sad. But how much more pleasant is it in our times to lighten its burden! If they that look out at the windows had been the optimists of happy to supply them with eye glasses for use before the public, and spectacles for their hours of privacy. If the grinders cease because they are few, they can be made many again when by a third invention, which brings no toothache in its train. By temperance and good habits of life, proper clothing, well armed, well drained and well ventilated dwellings, and sufficient, not too much exercise, the old man of our time may keep his muscular strength in very good condition.—Dr. Holmes in Atlantic.

The Lady and the Cigar.

The train from Paris to Versailles was to leave there in five minutes, says the Texas Siftings. An elegantly dressed gentleman enters a first-class carriage. He has a burning cigar in his mouth. He is about to take his seat when he perceives an elderly lady in the carriage. Being a gentleman he raises the window and is about to throw out the cigar, when the old lady says:

"Don't you know that you are forbidden to smoke in a first-class carriage when there are ladies in it?"

"My dear madame, you see I was just about to anticipate your wish by throwing away my cigar. However, I will not disturb you further."

"My good fellow," said the gentleman, "did you ever ride in a first-class carriage?"

"Never."

"Well, here's a ticket that I can't use. Just you go into that first-class carriage. There is a vacant seat next to a old lady; just take it."

The man, who was sadly in need of disinfectants, as, did as he was told. A few minutes after he entered the door of the first-class carriage was closed, and off went the train, which does not stop at any stations between Paris and Versailles. You can imagine whether or not the gentleman got even.

Fighting Parson.

During the Eighteenth century Presbyterian ministers settled among the people of northern Scotland needed to be men of great strength, piety and zeal. The Rev. James Sage, whose story is told in "Parish Life in the North of Scotland," belonged to the order of muscular Christians, being more than six feet in height and stout in proportion.

A year or two after he had become minister of Lochearn, he announced one Sunday his intention of holding "a diet catching" at the house of a dissolute man, a desperate character of great physical strength.

The minister's friends remonstrated with him, but he went to the man's house, and was ordered to go away.

"Easier said than done," answered the minister, "but you may turn me out if you can."

They were both powerful men, and neither of them hesitated to put upon the other his ponderous strength. After a short but fierce struggle, the minister became the victor, and the landlord, prostrated upon his own floor, was with a rope coiled round his arms and feet bound over to keep the peace.

The people of the district were then called in, and the minister proceeded seriously to discharge the duty of catechizing them. When that was finished, he set himself to deal with the delinquent present. The man was solemnly rebuked, and the minister so moved his conscience that he afterwards became a decided Christian.—Youth's Companion.
